CHIEF SECURITY ARCHITECT

TRANSUNION

Transunion was going through a cloud transformation while executing on its largest acquisition and divestiture in company history. Leadership was challenged by a worldwide pandemic, the great resignation, and high turnover in security leadership. I took over the role of Chief Security Architect and fractional VP of Cyber Defense Solutions until a new CISO and VP could be appointed. I partnered with development, CTI, and EA to deliver a Developer Experience program, a Global Architecture Council, improved org design, and continued improvement of a global security posture. The value realized by Transunion was a stronger development and security organization, security leadership stabilization, and continued strong market growth.

CHIEF TRANSFORMATION EVANGELIST

EQUIFAX

Equifax was operating as a post breach company, the board required clear strategic direction to transform the company. Employee attrition was high and customer trust was low. I partnered with senior leadership to guide roadmap development and alignment, solidify relationships between technology and security, drive customer engagement, establish and evolve a cultural engineering model, and create innovation, change agent, and continuous improvement programs. The value realized by Equifax was an increase in employee morale and customer trust, a stronger brand and stock price, and new growth opportunities for Equifax and its customers.

SR. BUSINESS TRANSFORMATION CONSULTANT

AGILETHOUGHT

AgileThought was trying to grow its service offerings and expand into the Atlanta market. Leadership needed a clear go to market strategy, best of breed talent, and significant growth. Leadership was skeptical as two previous launches into other markets had failed. I established a new service line of DevOps services, partnered with HR to create a new talent processing pipeline, landed key anchor clients, and contributed to the creation and growth of the Transform practice. The first year of service I received a Founder award for greatest contribution to the company. The value realized by AgileThought was exponential client, revenue, and talent pool growth, significant expansion of service portfolio, and a successful sale to a larger consultancy and eventual IPO.
